HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily diseases the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the lands a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills in the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?" The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especial ly those parts which are diseased If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon fac s that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated; the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr. SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7 50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists. Ap. 12 1y.

ANGEL FOOTFALLS.

BY R. W. EASTERBROOKS.

Patter-patter on the carpet,
Comes the sound of tiny feet,
And the blending of their footfalls
Makes the melody complete.
I can hear it in the sunlight,
Then it seems a carol gay;
And they enter with the moonbeams,
But their joyous fairy lay
Changes to a soothing nocturn,
As the night succeeds the day.

Other people can not hear them,
It is granted me alone
To discern a precious presence
In each timid trippling tone.
Some have listened; but my wee ones
Shrink from strangers, So you see,
Outside ears have never heard them;
They but come to comfort me.
I alone may know my darlings
By their footstep's melody.

One was taken while he studied
How alone to cross the room;
And I hear his timid stepping
Out into the midnight gloom.
Now he totters! Insecurely
Dimpled feet have touched the floor,
And he falls; but angel brothers
Lift him, as in days before;
And again he ventures forward,
Pit-pat! pit-pat! o'er and o'er.

So I recognize each stepping;
And though dear ones all have flown
From beyond my longing vision,
I am never quite alone.
Old and deaf to earthly soundings,
I can yet discern a strain
Keener hearings ne'er discover;
All their listening is vain!
And I know by every footfall
Earthly loss is heavenly gain.

THE MAGIC MIRROR.

BY JOHN THOMAS.

Ali Hassan was a gay young Persian of twenty-one. Life was all before him, except the twenty-one years he had skipped light-footed over (which were necessarily behind him), and matters and things had, in his eyes, a roseate hue Just of age, he had cast his first vote for President, and had consequently had an idea that the fate of the Republic rested on his shoulders; handsome, he fancied all the blooming maidens of the township in which he lived and the country adjacent, were in love with him. He was in the hair oil period of existence; at that precise age when young men pay particular attention to tooth brushes, not on account of cleanliness, which is truly next door to godliness and on the same side of the street—but for the looks of the thing, at the precise age when they part their hair behind and wear number seven boots, when number tens would be more comfortable.

Ali Hassan was of course in love—who ever saw a young man of twenty one who wasn't? No one, the author hereof ventures to assert. He loved wildly and incomprehensively—with a love that passed all understanding—particularly of her father who opposed the match.

Zobeide, the young damsel of whom Ali Hassan was enamored, was generally believed to be the most beautiful female in Persia, which was saying a great deal for her. Her eyes were like a stag's, her hair was masses of wavy curls, which had she lived in this day of false hair, would have brought a handsome price in any market, and—but why go into particulars. Suffice it say that she was a well proportioned girl, and her father had a farm of 160 acres half under improvement and the other half well timbered.

Ali and Zobeide were engaged. He had beaued her to evening meetings and lectures, and had taken her sleigh riding two winters, and, finally, after a vigorous siege she had capitulated.—The old man's consent was reluctantly gained, and the happy day which was to unite them into one twain, was fixed.

Ali Hassan was a happy youth.—He reveled in dreams of bliss continually. When he retired at night his last thought was of Zobeide—in the still watches of the night his younger brother, Eben Hassan, who shared his couch, was frequently obliged to "hist him out," as he expressed it, because he broke him of his slumbers by calling out in his sleep the name of "Zobeide!" (Eben offering in justification that because he was shortly to be married he had no call to make a cussed fool of himself); and his first thought as he pulled on his pants in the morning was Zobeide.

While reveling in this dream of bliss, he was somewhat astonished, being but twenty-one, and not knowing much about female human nature, at receiving a note from her. He looked upon the missive with strange foreboding. Why should she use up paper and envelopes and squander postage stamps, when she could see him personally at any time? His worst anticipations were realized? He read it and with a heartrending shriek he fell fainting to the floor. The perfidious woman stated therein that her feelings had undergone a change—that while she should always respect him as a friend and brother (two characters young men of twenty-one are never partial to filling) he could never be nothing else or more to her no how, all of which was signed "Zobeide." And, as if to finish him, that afternoon he received an invitation to her wedding, which was to take place the next night, the happy man being a new store-keepr who had just commenced business in the next village.

Of course life seemed to Ali Hassan a hollow mockery. The sun was obscured to him with a sort of haze, and for the first time in his life he neglected his back hair and teeth. After passing a sleepless night, he hied himself to the mountains, debating on the way, which was the most pleasant method of terminating an existence which was hateful to him, and at the same time covering the faithless fair one with the remorse of the most terrible character. Three methods suggested themselves, to wit: jumping off a precipice, lying down on a railroad tract, or drinking a pint of Cincinnati whiskey. Rejecting the latter as a death too lingering and horrible, the second as one which would not effect his purpose, as the papers would, ten to one, call it an accident, and as such it wouldn't wring Zobeid's bosom very much (that being what he was determined to do in one way or another,) he decided on the former. Accordingly he sought a precipice, and getting upon the brink thereof, he set himself down, composing a soul harrowing note to her, which he proposed to put in his breeches pocket, where it would be found, it being the custom of people finding dead bodies to always examine the pockets, and the letters which are found always made public. While composing this note, and debating in his mind whether "cruel" should be spelled with one or two's a venerable old man with a white beard, such as are seen in family Bibles which are sold only by subscription, stood before him. Starting up, Ali Hassan exclaimed:

"Who art thou?"

"Thy good genius," said the presence.

"My genius. Ha! ha. Lend me half a dollar," said Ali, becoming normal in an instant.

"My son, good geniuses never lend half dollars. That isn't their mission, it isn't, if I may use the expression, their best bolt. They give freely, however, what is more plenty than half dollars—advice."

"What wantest thou?" said Ali.

"To save you from making an ass of yourself," said the presence.

"Are you in that business extensively?" said Ali bitterly. "Oh venerable man, if the profession pays take me in partnership. You'll never run out of opportunities to show your skill. But proceed. Go on with your show."

"I will. Look into this glass," said the good genius, holding up a mirror six feet by four, in a natural walnut frame, which he dexterously drew from his right bind coat pocket.

"What do you see?"

"I see a mist," said Ali.

"Look again," said the genius.

"The mist clears away. I see a gay and festive scene. There is light and music, and fair women, and brave men and all goes merry as a marriage bell. There is a preacher—I know him by his black clothes and white kerchief, and the hungry look he ever and anon slings through the door which opens in the dining room where refreshments are."

"Go on."

"A pair enter—it is—is—take it away. It sears my eye balls and freezes my young blood," and uttering a Fenian war cry the unfortunate youth sank to the earth in spasms.

"It's terrible medicine," muttered the good genius to himself, "but he must take it. Quinine is bitter—calomel isn't as pleasant to the taste as peaches of Jersey, but when a child in Indiana has the ague they force it down him or her as the case may be. Arise, Ali Hassan," said he, raising him up tenderly by the hair "arise and continue your investigations."

With a shudder Ali opened his optics. "A pair enter: Zobeide and—the store keeper. The preacher steps up—he repeats the ceremony—Allah il Allah, Abonkir ben Hamet—it's over," and the young man, overcome with emotion, swooned again.

The venerable genius applied a pint bottle to his lips at which the youth revived. Turning over upon his back and pointing wishfully at the bottle he gasped "one more draught—only one."

"Nary," said the genius holding it up to the light. "There's but little left, and its four miles to the nearest grocery. But look some more.

"I see a house in a town. It's furnished gorgeous and regardless of expense. The carpet is tapestry, the sofa cost no less than $100, and there is a Chickering piano. Around it is a garden, in which the orange tree and the pine mingle their aromatic boughs, and the bulbul answers the nightingale's song of love. An antique fountain squirts cologne continually, diffusing a delicious fragrance through the atmosphere. It's gorgeous. I see into the bay window. Zobeide is sitting at the piano, shouting the 'Battle Cry of Freedom,' accompanying herself on the piano; a deformed dwarf of great price hovering around her, fanning her with one hand and turning over the leaves of music with the other; and it keeps him mighty busy. Her husband enters but heavens what a change. He don't hold his head up. Company enters—she smiles on him. They depart—she frowns. They interchange a few unpleasant paragraphs—she flies to him—she seizes him by the nape of the neck and the slack of the breeches and pitches him down stairs. Allah il Allah, what a muscular female."

"Look again."

"I see a picture. A man is endeavoring to fill a barrel with a teaspoon which a woman is emptying with a bucket. What does that signify?"

"It's an allegory my son. Look again and see the solution."

"I see and comprehend. The storekeeper's trade is light and profits are small, he is working hard in his store, while Zobeide is leaving the house, clad in purple and fine linen. I see the point of the allegory."

"Look again."

"I see a cabin in the suburbs, with a slatternly woman banging her children about like old boots. Outside, lying in the sun, and overcome with the strong waters of the Gaiour, I see a man and—"

"Enough," said the good genius. "I have shown you a yard of futurity.—Wilt cast thyself from the precipice for Zobeide now?"

"Respected sir," said Ali Hassan, "whoever you are, tell me, oh; tell me, is this which I have gazed on chapters in the biography of Zobeide?"

My son it is. She whom you call Zobeide has had a bead on her shoulders, and a will of her own and money. He who can manage her can take a city or rule an empire. She was in earnest in her intention to marry you because (pardon me if I flatter you) you are a fool. She knew she would be able to boss you with less wear and tear of temper than a man less a fool Following that strategy, she determined, to use the words of another, to fight it out on that line; she discarded you and took up with a new storekeeper, because she deemed him more a fool than you. I think she was mistaken, but let that pass. We will not argue that point—either would have done She furnishes the capital and she will control it, and whenever such a woman undertakes to manage the money which she brings into a firm, she is, my son, very apt to go on, reducing it to the very end of the chapter. This will happen with the storekeeper—had you married her, it would have happened you.

"There must be, my son, in all matters matrimonial, something like equality—if there is any difference between the parties it should be in favor of the male, for the reason that having the credit of being the stronger vessel, it hurts his feeling more to go the wall.

Had you married this high tempered female, possessed of money, the advantages would have been hers. She has intellect, which you have not—she has money, which you lack. You both have beauty that is only valuable to her. The men run after a handsome woman, but women despise a pretty man, because he is apt to be as near like themselves as it is possible for two beings gotten up on different models to be; and every well regulated female desires an opposite. I do not disapprove of your marrying for money—the good of the tax payers of your township demand it; but see to it that she has no intellect, that in that particular at least you may be on an equality with her, and also to the end of her not having force enough to make a ruption on account of her money. Such marriages are proper. It's bad for the next generation, but it is good for this, and this is the generation for which we are more immediately concerned. It's fair to presume that the next will take care of itself without any of our interference. The young man who marries for money must necessarily be an idiot or could make his pile easier—let the woman he marries be likewise, that too many families may not be spoiled. She should be also homely and old, as well as stupid; that while she makes a sacrifice in marrying a penniless man, the penniless man also makes a sacrifice in marrying such a bundle of hideousness. Then you have a hook in the jaws of the leviathan. If she throws her money in your face, you retort with her appearance, and that evens it up.

"Therefore, my son, go to her wedding to-morrow. Hide your disappointment, be the gayest of the gay, and the liveliest of the lively. Farewell. May the Allah of imbeciles protect you."

And enveloping himself in a mist he disappeared as quickly as he came.

Ali Hassan pondered. He changed his mind. He neglected to suicide. He went home, he parted his hair behind, he brushed his teeth, blacked his boots and arrayed himself in his most gorgeous vest, and the most crushing necktie, he went to the wedding and danced an Irish jig with the bride.—He was so gay, so jolly, wasn't pale and wan, that the bride nearly choked with vexation. His manliness was rewarded. That night he was introduced to a widow with no children, only fourteen years his senior, she hadn't any will at all, but whose husband had been kind enough to accumulate a pile of spelter before departing this life. Her he married, and for many years lived in the full enjoyment of everything he was capable of enjoying.

The Paperless Man.

"No, sir! I don't want noth'n of the kind. In the first place, I ha'nt got the money; and in the next place, if I had the money, I would'nt have non o' your papers."

So spoke Titus Closely, in answer to a man who had called to see if he would like to subscribe for a newspaper. Said man kept a store in a neighboring village, and was also the postmaster; and he had made arrangements to add to his business by establishing a newspaper agency.

"I can furnish you with any paper you may like," he explained to Mr. Closely, "and I can furnish it cheaper than you can get it in any other way; because by buying of me, you will save the postage. I shall have papers devoted to the interest of the Family; papers for the Farmers; papers for the Mechanic; and papers for both young and old; and in short, I may assure you that any one of them would be worth far more to you than I propose to ask. Ask your wife what she thinks. You have no idea what a vast amount of valuable information you will find."

Nancy Closely wanted a paper, but her husband said,—

"O, bother! I don't want it, I tell ye. I've got as much as I can do to look after my farm; and if Nancy and the children want to read, they can get tracts of the minister."

"Your neighbor Deepwater, has subscribed for two papers," said the agent. "He will take a pleasant, high-toned literary paper for his family, and a paper devoted to Art, Science, and Agriculture for himself."

"The more fool he!" cried Titus Closely, contemptuously. "John Deepwater can't afford it no more'n I can. My farm is bigger and better'n his is; and I tell ye flat an' square, that I ha'n't got no three dollars to throw away for a newspaper."

"But—Titus—"

"Shut up, Nancy! I tell ye, I don't want it."

And Nancy closed her lips; and the agent went his way; and Titus Closely went forth to plow his ground with the great old wooden plow which his father and his grandfather had used before him.

And time passed on. The newspaper agency was established at the village post office; but Titus did not patronize it. He felt that he had a principle at stake. He had said he would not,—and he wouldn't. But in one thing he was consistent. He would not allow his wife or children to borrow papers of his neighbor Deepwater if he knew it.

One day Titus Closely and his wife took tea, by invitation, with neighbor Deepwater.

"I declare, Nancy," said Titus, on their way home, "Prudence Deepwater beats all creation for cooking, doesn't she? I'd no idea she was such a hand at it. I wonder where she got them fresh strawberries?"

"She preserved them herself," answered Nancy.

"O,—git—scout! Them wasn't preserved; they were fresh as now picked."

"It's the way they were fixed, Titus."

"Eh! can you do it?"

"I could if I had her paper."

"Her paper?"

"Yes, she found the recipe in her newspaper. And that's where she learned how to do most all of her nice cooking."

Titus changed the subject of conversation.

Autumn came, and the Agricultural Fair was held in an adjoining town.—Titus went over with a yoke of what he considered very fine oxen; but he found, when the exhibition came off, that he was very far behind the times. New breeds, of which he had known nothing, had been introduced, and his own animals were not deemed worthy of notice.

Republican County Convention.

A Convention of the Union Republicans of Huntingdon county, will be held in the borough of Huntingdon, on TUESDAY, AUGUST 9TH, 1870, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

This Convention will be composed of two delegates from each township, borough, ward and district.

The Republican voters of the county are requested to meet at their respective places of holding elections (except those of the West ward of the borough of Huntingdon, who will hold their election at the new Engine House,) on Saturday, the 6th day of August—in the Townships, between the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock, p. m., and in the Boroughs between the hours of 6 and 9 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to this Convention.

Nominations will be made at the Convention for Congress, State Senate, Assembly, Associate Judge, County Commissioner, Director of the Poor, and County Auditor.

WM. LEWIS,
Chairman Republican County Committee.

THE Blair County Radical has charged us with denouncing the Morrell Bessemer steel business. We have not said a word upon that subject. There must be something wrong or the editor of that paper, one of Morrell's organs, would not see ghosts.

CONGRESS has adjourned after a session of over seven months, and the Republican journals throughout the States are almost unanimous in the opinion that a large majority of the members asking for a re-election should be left at home—and the people, almost crushed to earth with taxes, are of the same opinion.

"WHO is to be our candidate for Congress this fall?"—Cremer's Republican.

More than likely the nominee of the Democratic party will be your candidate this fall. You are in favor of the nomination of Mr. Morrell for a third term. Last year you were in favor of yourself being made Prothonotary, but the Republican Convention rejected you, and you threw your support to and helped to elect the Democratic candidate. It may be just so this fall, if Mr. Morrell should not be nominated it may be as convenient for you to support a Democrat for Congress as it is for Mr. Morrell's friends in Cambria to support a Democrat for the Legislature.

THE Journal & American seems to be afraid that the Republicans of the county will not turn out at the delegate elections and convention because we will not join with Mr. Logan in issuing a call. That paper need not be uneasy—the party will be out just as strong under our call as if it had been issued by Robertor Mr. Logan. We can't see the reason why it should not. A few calling themselves Republicans may object to coming out under our call for fear they may be required to pledge their support to the ticket to be nominated or be denied a seat in the Convention; such are not called by our call. If they do get seats in the Convention they will be there only to disorganize and unite again with the Democrats to defeat the ticket.

THERE are Republicans outside of the county who cannot see why the disorganizers have had an influence to disorganize the party. Such are informed that all the most important, and very near all the smaller offices filled in and from the county through the influence of Mr. Scott and Mr. Morrell, have been filled in the interest of the disorganizers. The townships and boroughs, all, have their officeholders or expectants who do the bidding of the chief disorganizers or take no active part against them. The mass of the voters deceived last year will not be deceived again by such men; they will act free from their advice no matter what position they may occupy or how near they may be to one, because they know that by a strict adherence to party nominations party defeat may be prevented, but by yielding to the demands of the disorganizers defeat must follow and the party be destroyed.

THE Blair County Radical says that Mr. Morrell is supported for a third term by two of the three wings of the Republican party in this county. But two wings to the party are known to the voters here—the wing that supported the regularly nominated ticket last fall, and the wing headed by Mr. Scott, and supported by the Republican, Mr. Morrell's office-holders, and others reliable only when they themselves are candidates for election. The Journal & American does not represent either the party or a fraction of it, as it changes position so often that neither the one wing nor the other can have any confidence in it. Last year it was with the disorganizers in the Convention and until three weeks afterwards, when its price was refused, (so Cremer says,) and it came into the support of the regular ticket. This year it has been here and there, and to-day it is nowhere, is in the market waiting to be bought again at better pay than census-taker.

The Disorganizers at work in Cambria County.

We see by Mr. Morrell's organ at Johnstown, that in Cambria county Mr. Morrell's friends will support upon the same ticket with him, (if nominated) James Potts for Assembly. Mr. Potts is and always has been a straight-out Democrat of the most rabid kind, and if he should be elected, and he most likely will be, he will work for the advancement of Democratic measures, including free trade, during the session. This disorganizing movement of Mr. Morrell's friends in Cambria is similar to the conduct of the disorganizers in this county last fall in uniting with the Democrats and defeating the Republican candidates. It does not look well for Mr. Morrell's organ to have at its mast-head:

For Congress:
D. J. MORRELL, (Republican)
For Assembly:
JAMES POTTS, (Democrat.)

The mix is a little too strong for Republicanism in this county. A man who will consent to an arrangement by which his party must suffer in the State that a local interest in which he is interested can be strengthened, is not deserving the confidence or support of party men. The Democrats want to have a majority in the next Legislature to district the State to their interest, and Mr. Morrell and his friends in Cambria are willing to help them secure such power. Such Republicanism can't be endorsed by the Republican party in this county.

The Election of Delegates.

The Republican voters in every election district should require a pledge from the persons they propose to elect as delegates that they will support the ticket when nominated and they to require the same pledge from all candidates before the Convention, before they are balloted for. A coming together of the party in such a spirit would leave no room for disorganizers to repeat the mischief of last year.—The Chairman of the County Committee should be required to obey the instructions of the Convention and to act in harmony with the State Committee. With a united front, pledged to the support of the ticket, the party will come out of the campaign victorious; but with another disorganizer to lead, repudiated by the State Committee as Mr. Logan was and is, the party cannot expect success. We hope that every Republican in the county who desires to see his party successful will attend the delegate elections, and elect good and true men as delegates to the Republican Convention to be held in this place in August.

"BELIEVING it to be the duty of every man who either is or claims to be a member of the Republican County Committee to yield more personal considerations for the sake of the party and the principles which he represents, I now propose to join with you in a general call," &c.—Logan's Letter.

Last year he didn't believe in any such belief; then for a personal consideration he agreed to play disorganizer and assisted to defeat five regular nominees of the party. The personal consideration he is now enjoying, discharging the duties of County Treasurer in place of Cloyd who was put forward as a blind. Logan must practice a little political honesty before we can believe that he will be true in the future. We have seen no evidence that he intends to support the ticket to be nominated if it should not be composed of his kind of Republicans, therefore we have refused to go in partnership with him in a call for a Convention.—We have been deceived too often by such loose party men to be "picked up" just now by Mr. Logan and his advisers.

WE don't believe that Mr. Morrell seriously thinks of being a candidate for election for a third term. His "situation" is such that defeat would be almost certain. We believe he is a candidate only to help save from defeat at the next delegate elections the guerrilla leaders in this county. Mr. Scott, and the guerrilla Republican faction have put Mr. Morrell forward in this county as their candidate and they suppose his name will be strong enough to carry them through, and give them a controlling influence in the Convention. If such should be the result in the Convention, Mr. Scott and his guerrilla friends would claim it as an endorsement by the Republican party of the county of their conduct last fall. What would be the "situation" then? Guerrillaism endorsed—guerrillaism made respectable—guerrillas name Mr. Morrell's successor—Andy Johnsonism lost in the fog—the Republican party in the county and district demoralized and routed for want of honest and reliable leaders.—What then?

We see that Mr. Cloyd, elected Co. Treasurer last fall, is in town, and it is supposed he will remain here until after the meeting of the Republican Convention, to try to make believe that he and not Mr. Logan is the Co. Treasurer. The price Mr. Logan was promised for playing into the hands of the disorganizers and Democrats he is receiving.

France and Prussia at War.

Cable dispatches announce that a war is now raging between the powerful governments of France and Prussia. The difficulty, or pretense for the difficulty has grown out of the desire to choose a king for Spain—last month the throne being abdicated by Isabella II. A number of "eligible" princes have been applied to but none agreed to take the throne, when General Prim saw that one of the King of Portugal's sisters was married to Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern, a Prussian, who was willing to accept. Prim gave notice to all great powers that the Crown of Spain had been offered this Prince, when Napoleon objected to him, although he is a relative. King William, of Prussia, said he would not object, as a family man, to Prince Leopold declining the candidature, (which he has done,) but that as King of Prussia, he would not interfere. On this, Count Benedittl, French Ambassador, demanded that Prince Leopold's renunciation should be perpetual, and that no matter how strong the demand from Spain, the Prussian veto should always prevent his being a candidate. King William refused to see the French Ambassador and curtly sent him word that he had no further communication to receive or make. One account has it that Count Benedittl accosted him in the garden, and the King turned his back upon him, which Napoleon took as an insult. At all events, the pretext was taken up by Napoleon, and war was declared.

It would be mere speculation to say how many governments will take part in the conflict, although England inclines in favor of France, and Russia inclines with Prussia. Napoleon's ambition has been to make the Rhine the eastern boundary of France, whilst Prussia has been eager to measure swords with France. Napoleon it is thought will take field in person.

Congress.

From the Hollidaysburg Register.]

HUNTINGDON, July 6, 1870.

GENTLEMEN:—I see in an article in the REGISTER on the question of our next congressman, the statement that nobody has been elected from this part of the State for a third term for more than forty years. My recollection extends back for forty-two years—to the year 1828. In that year Hon. John Scott, of Huntingdon county, father of Senator Scott, was elected and served one term. In 1830, Hon. Robert Allison, of the same county, was elected and served one term. He was succeeded in 1832 by Capt. Joseph Henderson, distinguished in the war of 1812, of Mifflin county, and who was elected for a second term in 1834. In 1836 Hon. William W. Potter, of Centre county, was elected, and elected for a second term in 1838, but dying before his second term expired, Gen. McCullock was elected to fill his unexpired term. He was succeeded by Gen. James Irwin of Centre county in 1840, who was elected for a second term in 1842. Hon. John Blanchard was elected in 1844 and re-elected in 1846. In 1848 Hon. Samuel Calvin of Blair county, was elected, and declined a second nomination. In 1850 Hon. Andrew Parker of Mifflin county, was elected and also declined a nomination for a second term. Dr. John McCulloch was elected in 1852, and served one term. Hon. John R. Edie of Somerset county was elected in 1854, and elected for a second term in 1856. In 1858 Hon. S. S. Blair of Blair county was elected, and elected, for a second term in 1860. Hon. A. McAllister of Blair county, was elected in 1862, and declined a nomination for a second term. He was succeeded by Hon. A. A. Barker of Cambria county, in 1864, who served for one term. Hon. D. J. Morrell of Cambria county was elected in 1866, and in 1868 elected for a second term. Mr. Morrell and Mr. Barker have just had a warm contest for the conferees of Cambria county, and Mr. Morrell has carried his county by a small majority, but some thirty of the delegates have signed a remonstrance protesting against Mr. Morrell's nomination. From the foregoing statement, it appears that no man of any party from this part of the State, has been elected for a third term for forty-two years. The removal of the county seat from Ebensburg to Johnstown has become the all absorbing question in that county, and threatens much trouble and confusion, and Mr. Morrell is identified with the removal party. He is also complicated with the trouble in Huntingdon county. In view of this state of things, will Mr. Morrell urge his nomination for a third term? Is there no other man in the district capable of representing it? Sometime ago, I have good reasons for believing, that Mr. Morrell was considering the propriety of withdrawing his name, and this he could do without any loss of honor, having carried his own county. I am well satisfied with his course as a congressman, and have nothing to say against him; but I do think in view of all the facts, he should not claim a nomination for a third term, and should let us have some new man nominated who is not in any way connected with any cliques or factions, and not complicated with the troubles in Cambria and Huntingdon counties. This would render our success much more certain in this district this fall. I see by the REGISTER that Hon. Samuel Calvin of Blair county, is strongly urged for Congress. Mr. Calvin's nomination would unite and harmonize the discordant elements in this county, as he is not in any way complicated with our political troubles. Mr. Calvin is well known as a strong tariff man, and a warm 'and thorough going Republican, always ready by his talents and influence to sustain and uphold the great industrial interests of the country.—Give us a new man, and the Congressional district will be safe.

A REPUBLICAN.

A daughter of Mr. Lieper Evans, of Drumore township, Lancaster county, who had been suffering from a seemingly unknown cause since last October, was suddenly taken violently sick on Wednesday last, and when believed to be in the agonies of death, vomited forth a small snake about eight inches long. It is supposed to have been taken in while in the act of drinking from a spring near the house, and to have lived in the child, for about eight months, during which the little girl often suffered most acute pain. Though temporarily relieved by the ejection of the reptile, yet her physical system had been so prostrated that she died on the following evening. This unusual and remarkable affair has created quite an excitement in the neighborhood of its occurrence.

☞ The Supreme Court has affirmed the decision of the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin county, that the Pennsylvania Canal Company cannot be compelled to make the required sluices in their dams, for the passage of fish.

Mr. Morrell and this "Situation"

We call the special attention of the Republicans of this county to the following from the Hollidaysburg Register:

"True, efforts have been made before, which were almost successful, and which would have been successful had there not been great political issues at stake, which a few persons thought should not be sacrificed for any merely local issue. But there are no such issues now—the war is over, there is no State ticket and no U. S. Senator to be elected, the political lookout will be the same one year, hence that it is now, and the election of a members of Assembly will affect only the local questions which he will need to urge for the benefit of his own community."

The above extract is from the Johnstown "Tribune," the organ of Hon. Daniel J. Morrell, and which has his name at its head for Congress; it contains the reasons of that paper for supporting Gen. James Potts, a Democrat, for the legislature. Let us examine these reasons a little. That paper says there are no great political issues at stake, no United States Senator to be elected, the political lookout will be the same one year hence as now, and the election of a member of Assembly will only affect local questions. The next Legislature of Pennsylvania will be one of the most important that will again assemble for several generations. The State has to be redistricted for Congress, for State Senators and members—a Legislature, for like purposes, will not again, after next fall, be elected for seventy years, or till nineteen hundred and forty, long after the present generation will have pased off the stage of action. We repeat that until the year nineteen hundred and forty, the same Legislature will not again redistrict the State for Congress, Senators and Members of the Legislature. Though no United States Senator will be elected next winter, yet under the redistricting of the State, at that time, for Legislative and Senatorial districts, will the Senators for the next seven years be chosen. Under the redistricting of the State for Congress, at the same session, will the congressmen from Pennsylvania for the next ten years, be elected; and yet the "Tribune" says that there are no great political issues at stake in this campaign! Upon the result of the political complexion of the next Legislature, will depend, in great part, the future success of that party which stepped into the breach during the late rebellion, and saved the country, and yet that paper says there are no great political issues at stake! We desire an honest and fair apportionment of the State for Congressmen, and Senators and Members, but that paper is willing to trust this matter to that party whose record for the last ten years has been covered all over with treason and rebellion. The Democratic party is aware of the importance of the political complexion of the next Legislature, and is even now making superhuman efforts to carry the majority in that body. If easy Republicans help them elsewhere, as in Cambria, they may succeed, and we could not then get a fair apportionment.

Hon. Daniel J. Morrell has connected himself actively with the question of the removal of the county seat from Ebensburg to Johnstown, and his organ, his friends, and himself, are supporting a Democrat for the Legislature, on that question, and who will if elected, vote with his party in favor of the redistricting of the State in the interest of the Democratic party—Ought Mr Morrell to jeopardize the Republican cause, under the circumstances, by forcing himself for a third term upon the party against the wishes of a large part of its members?—Ought that gentleman and his friends, after supporting a Democrat for the Legislature, ask the nomination for Congress from the Republican party? These are serious questions and deserve to be duly considered. Let us have a gentleman for Congress free from these troubles in Cambria, and also not connected with the unfortunate difficulties in Huntingdon county. Hon. Samuel Calvin is a gentleman in every way qualified to represent this district in Congress and would command the undivided support of the party. He has always been a worker in the party, and we trust the Republicans of the district may see the propriety of his nomination.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

PARIS, July 15.—There is great agitation here, many demonstrations in favor of war were made by the people during the night. Crowds of students and others paraded the streets and boulevards shouting vive war, down with Prussia &c. Some persons who protested were hissed and insulted. The police did not interfere. The crowd stopped at the Prussian embassy and shouted insultingly. It is asserted that the Prussian Ambassador leaves Paris to day.

PARIS, July 15.—The dissensions in the French Cabinet have ended in an unanimity on the question of war.—The emperor will hold a permanent council of his Marshals and Ministers at the Tuilleries.

Movements of troops towards the Rhine frontier is incessant. Eastern France is absolutely alive with soldiers. Troops which have hitherto garrisoned Paris have gone, and raw levies are slowly replacing them.—Ambulances and caissons throng the streets of the city on their route to the East. The preparations at the different naval stations are on a similarly large scale.

PARIS, July 15, 2 P. M.—Dispatches state that the French have declared war, and that Prussia is already moving her troops.

PARIS, June 15, 3 P. M.—The Corps Legislatif declared war against Prussia at ten minutes before two to day.

Holland remains neutral. The belligerents are to respect neutrality, yet troops are rapidly concentrating at Antwerp and other strategic points. The specie and bullion of the Bank of Antwerp have been removed to the citadel. Paper money is to be used by Holland.

LATEST.

An engagement between the two armies reported to have taken place at Forbach, the French victorious.

Paris, July 16.—The French army is concentrating at Metz, 43 miles N. E. of Forbach. Napoleon leaves to-day for the border, and will cross the Rhine

The Sabbath School Convention.

The Huntingdon County Sabbath School Convention assembled in the Court House on Wednesday morning last, and remained in session until Thursday evening. There were over one hundred and sixty delegates in attenddnce, and it is thought almost every school in the county was represented by one or more delegates, while some of the schools in neighboring counties were also represented. The court-room was full at every session, and the interest manifested in the discussions was very spirited. The tactics, however, of some of the speakers in debating what they deem to be the wrong side of a question, just for the sake of argument, in such a crowded and knowledge seeking assembly, are such that cannot be commended.

K. Allen Lovell, Esq., (who with a few other worthy and energetic workers, was instrumental in getting up the Convention,) was chosen President, and the able manner in which he presided over the body called forth many comments of praise, which were proved to be substantial from the fact that he was chosen permanent President without a dissenting voice.

Rev. George A. Peltz, President of the Penna. State S. S. Association, was present throughout the Convention; his counsel was repeatedly elicited, and his presence gave the convention a spirit of animation that would probably have otherwise been wanting; and there were few if any of those present who did not feel benefitted by the instruction his large experience in Sunday School labor enabled him to impart.

The Convention, though called at an inopportune time, and after but a few weeks' notice, was a success, and did more than could be expected from delegates and officers, many of whom never attended one of the kind, nor knew what was expected of them. The statistics, as is admitted, are incomplete, but enough is known to attest the fact that by well organized efforts the whole character of the Sunday School work in the county may be developed We are glad to note that the movement has been organized on this permanent basis, and indulge the hope that at each succeeding year there will be renewed zeal in the work, and an effectual removal of all the obstacles to its progress.

— The proceedings of the Convention, which are very lengthy, we will give our readers in our next issue.

[Communicated.]

DEDICATION.—June 26th, 1870, was a day of joy to the members of Mill Creek Evangelical Lutheran Congregation, and to many others who have "buried loves" at the Old Church above Mill Creek station. The church which has stood deserted, and the ancient burying ground, where sleep many of the earlier settlers, long neglected, have been leased to the M. E. L. C. and nicely repaired, and on the 26th was solemnly dedicated to the service of the Triune God. The day was very warm, yet the congregation was large and attentive. Rev. A. L. Guss, Principal of the Cassville Orphans' School, preached the dedicatory sermon from Psalms xxvii, 4. We may truly say the discourse was interesting and instructive. Contributions were then solicited to meet all expenses.

The thanks of the congregation are presented to Mr. Wm. Lewis, of the Globe, for the beautiful Bible presented by him; also to Mr. A. Stewart, dealer in hardware in Huntingdon, for the very complete pulpit lamp, and to Mr. E. S German, of Harrisburg, for the splendid pulpit Hymn-book.

This congregation, which was organized A. D. 1868, has now a place in which to worship. It may be humble, but still we feel grateful to God for the favor shown in this. Many thanks to the kindly disposed friends who so willingly helped in this enterprise.

Our prayer to God is that in this house now consecrated to His service He may dwell, and here answer prayer breathed by heart's oppressed by sin.

Perhaps the prospects of this school were never more full of promise than now. Those therefore who have sons or daughters to educate, we think, cannot do better than to send them to Williamsport Dickinson Seminary.

One of the "peculiarities" of Independence day at Altoona was a balloon ascension without the aeronaut.—He had advertised for weeks previously that he would soar beneath the bag of gas; but when the time arrived for temporarily leaving terra firma his courage oozed out at his finger's ends, and the indignant populace dragged the owner from his car, cut the rope that held the balloon to the earth, and it shot heavenward without a navigator. Fortunately for the owner his aerial machine descended uninjured a short time afterward, but four or five miles from the mountain city.

☞ Notwithstanding the two powerful governments of France and Prussia are involved in a war which threatens to revolutionize Europe, the citizens on this side of the water can still push the wheels of industry heedless of war's alarms, or the din of battle. So, at least, our enterprising baker, Luke Reilly, thinks, and he is determined to supply his customers with his excellent Bread, Cakes, &c., and save the good housewives a heap of trouble this hot weather.

A barn belonging to John Cahill, located a few miles below town, was destroyed by fire on Sunday afternoon last. A quantity of hay which was put in the day before, was consumed. It is supposed by some that the heat of the hay caused the fire, while others believe it was struck by lightning.

MARRIED,

On the 14th inst., by Rev. J. W. Plannett, Mr. ANDREW B. JOHNSTON of Mt. Union, to Miss CATHERINE FLECK, of Mapleton, this county.

DIED,

In Juniata township, on the 16th inst., Miss. MARTHA ALICE CORBIN, aged 16 years, 7 mos., and 5 days.

In this borough, on the 13th inst., Mrs. ELIZABETH NASH, in the 79th year of her age.

The deceased was amongst the oldest citizens of this place, where she resided during her entire life, respected and esteemed by all her friends, neighbors and acquaintances. She died in the triumphs of Christian faith and with the full assurance of a glorious immortality, descending to the grave "like a shock of corn fully ripe," and with the light of a Saviour's love to cheer her passage through the dark valley and shadow of death. May our end be like hers.

ADDRESS

TO THE

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED

FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE

CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid, they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis and for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—the in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other in a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent composite of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—has a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreeboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtel, of Lima, Ohio, writes: I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it, if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicines, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it be, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts., medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by

INSECTS—BIRDS.

If I were to estimate the average loss per annum of the farmers of this country from Insects at $100,000,000 per annum I should doubtless be far below the mark. The loss of Fruit alone by the devastation of insects, within a radius of fifty miles from this City, must amount in value to millions. In my neighborhood, the Peach once flourished, but flourishes no more, and Cherries have been all annihilated. Apples were till lately our most profitable and perhaps our most important product, but the worms take half our average crop and sadly damage what they do not utterly destroy. Plums we have ceased to grow or expect; our Pears are generally strung and often blighted; even the Currant has at last its fruit-destroying worm. We must fight our paltry adversaries more efficiently, or allow them to drive us wholly from the field.

Now, I have no doubt that our best allies in this glorious warfare are the Birds. They would save us, if we did not destroy them. The British plowman turning his sod with a myriad of crows, blackbirds, &c., chasing his steps and all, but getting under his feet in their eager quest of grubs, bugs, &c., is a spectacle to be devoutly thanked for. Whenever clouds of birds shall habitually darken our fields in May and (less notably) throughout the Summer months, we may reasonably hope to grow fair crops of our favorite Fruits from year to year, and realize that we owe them to the constant, and zealous, though not quite disinterested efforts of our friends, the Birds.

But I do not regard the ravages of Insects as entirely due to the reckless destruction and consequent scarcity of our Birds. I hold that their multiplication and their devastations are largely incited by the degeneracy of our plants caused by the badness of our culture. On this point, consider a statement made to me, some fifteen or twenty years ago, by the late Gov. William F. Packer, of Pennsylvania:

"I know (said Gov. P.) the narrow valley of a stream that runs into the west branch of the Susquehanna, which was cleared of the private forest some forty or fifty years since, and has ever since been alternately in tillage and grass. A road ran through the middle of it, dividing it into two narrow fields. A few years ago, this road was abandoned, and the whole of this little Valley, including the road-way, thrown into a single field, which was thereupon sown to wheat. At harvest time, this remarkable phenomenon was presented: A good crop of sound grain on the strip four or five rods wide formerly covered by the road; while nearly every berry on either side of it was destroyed by the weevil or midge."

Now I do not infer from this fact that insect ravages are wholly due to our abuse and exhaustion of the soil. I presume that wheat and other crops would be devastated by insects if there were no slovenly, niggard, exhausting tillage. But I do firmly hold that at least half our losses by insects would be precluded if our fields were habitually kept in better heart by deep culture, liberal fertilizing, and a judicious rotation of crops. I heard little of insect ravages in the wheat fields of Western New-York throughout the first thirty years of this century; but, when crops of Wheat had been taken from the same fields until they had been well nigh exhausted of their Wheat-forming elements, we began to hear of the desolation wrought by insects; and those ravages increased in magnitude until Wheat culture had to be abandoned for years. I believe that we should have heard little of insects had Wheat been grown on those fields but one year in three since their redemption from the primal forest.

But, whatever might once have been, the Philistines are upon us. We are doomed, for at least a generation, to wage a relentless war against insects multiplied beyond reason by the neglect and short comings of our predecessors. We are in like condition with the inhabitants of the British isles a thousand years ago, whose forefathers had so long endured and so unskillfully resisted invasion and spoliation by the Northmen that they had come to be regarded, as the sea-kings' natural prey. For generations it has been customary hereabout to slaughter without remorse the birds, and let caterpillars, worms, grasshoppers, &c., multiply and ravage unresisted. We must pay for past errors by present loss and years of extra effort. And, precisely because the task is so arduous, we ought to lose no time in addressing ourselves to its execution.

The first step to be taken is very simple. Let every farmer who realizes the importance and beneficence of Birds teach his own children and friends that, except the Hawk, they are to be spared, protected, kindly treated, and (when necessary) fed. They are to be valued and cherished as the voluntary police of our fields and gardens, constantly employed in fighting our battles against our ruthless foes. The boy who robs a bird's nest is robbing the farmer of a part of his crops. He who traverses a farm shooting and mangling its feathered sentinels diminishes its future product of Grain and nearly destroys that of Fruit. The farmer might as well consent that any strolling ruffian should shoot his Horses or Cattle as his Birds. Begin at home to make this truth felt and respected, and it will be the easier to impress it also on your neighbors.

Next, there should be neighborhood or township associations for the protection of insect-eating birds. We must not merely agree to let them live—we must cherish and protect them. I believe that very simple cups or bowls of cast iron, having each a hole in its center of suitable size, that need not cost sixpence each, and could be fastened to the side of a tree with one naillightly driven, would in time be adopted by many birds as nesting strongholds, whence they might laugh to scorn their predacious enemies. If every harmless bird could build its nest among us in a place where its eggs would be safe from hawks, crows, cats, boys, and other robbers, the number of such birds would quickly be doubled and quadrupled.

And we must summon the law to our aid. Though law can do little or nothing against stealthy, skulking nest-plunderers, it can help us materially in our warfare with the cowardly vagabonds who traverse our fields with musket or rifle, blazing away at every unsuspecting robin crow or thrush that they can discover. Make it trespass, punishable with fine and imprisonment, to shoot on another's land without his express permission, and the cowardly massacre of the farmers' humble allies would be checked at once, and, when public sentiment had been properly enlightened, might, in civilized regions, be arrested altogether.

The Happy Time.

O, the happy time is coming,
When the gospel trumpets sound,
Shall be heard by every nation,
To the earth's remotest bound;
When the vale shall be exalted,
And the verdant hills rejoice,
And the ocean join the chorus,
With a loud triumphant voice.
CHO: Lo, the morning light will break
And the day is drawing nigh,
Yes, the glorious time is coming soon,
We shall hail it by and by.

O the happy time is coming
When the cry of war shall cease,
And the standard of our Saviour,
Be the olive branch of peace;
Underneath our vine and fig tree
We will never be afraid,
There is none will dare molest us,
In their calm and quiet shade.—CHO.

O the happy time is coming
By our fathers once foretold,
It is promised in the bible,
It was sung by prophets old:
They who sit in heathen darkness,
Soon the morning light shall see,
And the world, with songs of triumph,
Hail the glorious jubilee.—CHO.

I am Waiting by the River.

I am waiting by the river,
And my heart has waited long;
Now I think I hear the chorus
Of the angels welcome song,
O, I see the dawn is breaking,
On the hill-tops of the blest,
Where the wicked cease from troubling
And the weary be at rest.

Far away beyond the shadows,
Of this weary vale of tears,
There the tide of bliss is sweeping
Through the bright and changeless years;
O, I long to be with Jesus,
In the mansions of the blest,
Where, &c.

They are launching on the river,
From the calm and quiet shore,
And they soon will bear my spirit
Where the weary sigh no more;
For the tide is swiftly flowing,
And I long to greet the blest,
Where, &c.

Jewels.

When he cometh, when he cometh,
To make up his jewels,
All his jewels, precious jewels,
His lov'd and his own.
CHO.—Like the stars of the morning,
His bright crown adorning,
They shall shine in their beauty
Bright gems for his crown.

He will gather, he will gather,
The gems for his kingdom;
All the pure ones, all the bright ones,
His lov'd and his own.—CHO.

Little children, little children,
Who love their Redeemer,
Are the jewels, precious jewels,
His lov'd and his own.—CHO.

Sweet Hour of Prayer.

‖: Sweet hour of prayer :‖
That calls me from a world of care,
And bids me at my Father's throne,
Make all my wants and wishes known
In seasons of distress and grief,
My soul has often found relief,
‖: And oft escaped the tempter's snare
By thy return, sweet hour of pray'r. :‖

‖: Sweet hour of prayer! :‖
Thy wings shall my petition bear,
To him whose truth and faithfulness
Engage the waiting soul to bless;
And since he bids me seek his face,
Believe his word, and trust his grace,
‖: I'll cast on him my every care,
And wait for thee, sweet hour of pray'r
